

Welcome to Trinity Cathedral.

I began my tenure as Dean on March 1, 2009, having arrived on the Eastern Shore in 1999. Before arriving on the shore, I lived outside Boston, Denver, downtown Toronto, Knoxville, and San Antonio.

I have been an Episcopal priest for 31 years. I am father to four children and stepfather to two children. Life is good, full, and rich even as it is challenging.

My ministry model is best expressed in Henri Nouwen's term—the Wounded Healer. I believe that which we call God is best experienced and expressed in vulnerability. Wholeness (another word for salvation) the goal; is a process of transcending and including so nothing is lost but all is transformed. No running from—always toward.

I enjoy listening to my stereo for hours, or relaxing in the hammock with a book, when I'm not doing something to the house.

Trinity continues to undergo changes both in its structures and its people. We are on a journey, and we welcome and are influenced by many people who pass through our doors—some for a long time and others a short time but all leave their mark. We are not perfect (not our goal), we are not everyone's "cup of tea", but we know our goodness and welcome you to join us for a taste of it on Sunday mornings, or at our Wednesday healing service, or Wednesday nights at The Easton English School at Trinity (where we teach English to 40 plus neighbors/immigrants).

Welcome!
